Harmsen Utescher has a long-standing tradition, and is yet far from being antiquated. On the contrary: the Hamburg law firm has managed the generational transition quite impressively.

The law firm is almost omnipresent in trade mark and competition law; the IP team is at the fore in numerous proceedings before the higher and highest courts. Moreover, Harmsen Utescher has expanded their client base significantly in recent years. The law firm particularly benefited from their excellent international contacts and won clients such as McCain and Telegraaf Media.

In patent law, too, the process of rejuvenation has been successful. Karsten König has taken over responsibility for this department and is highly visible through his widespread litigation presence.
